Reverte oxo-biodegradable masterbatches.

Relating to compliance with Canadian Domestic Substances Listing.

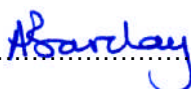

The use of polymers and chemicals in Canada is regulated through the use of a "positive list" system known as the Canadian Domestic Substances List (DSL).

The DSL is a comprehensive inventory of known substances in Canadian commerce (past and current) and currently includes approximately 24,000 substances. The DSL is the sole basis for determining whether a substance is new for the purposes of the Canadian Environmental Protection Act, 1999 (CEPA, 1999). Substances on the DSL are considered to exist in Canadian commerce and do not require notification unless they are proposed for a Significant New Activity (SNAc) as indicated on the DSL.

Polymers and chemicals not appearing on the DSL are considered to be new to Canada and are subject to notification under the New Substances Notification Regulations (Chemical and Polymers) of CEPA, 1999.

The Non-domestic Substances List (NSDL) specifies substances that are not on the DSL but are in commercial use internationally. As a basis for this list, Environment Canada used the United States Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA). Substances on the NSDL are subject to notification under the Regulations of CEPA, 1999 but may require different information in the New Substance Notification (NSN) packages.

We can confirm that all of the ingredients contained within Reverte formulations are listed in the DSL.
